A. Nari Sashaktikaran: Echoes from Ancient India in the Modern World

The concept of Nari Sashaktikaran, or women's empowerment, finds intriguing connections with the philosophical wellspring of ancient India. By examining these links, we can not only gain a deeper appreciation for historical perspectives on women's agency, but also find inspiration for the ongoing pursuit of gender equality.

Traces of Empowerment in Ancient Thought:

The Learned Women of the Vedas (1500-500 BCE): During the Vedic period, a surprising level of educational freedom existed for women, particularly from upper castes. Renowned scholars like Gargi and Maitreyi challenged established norms by actively participating in philosophical discourses. Their stories highlight the importance of education as a foundation for empowerment. In today's world, ensuring equal access to quality education for girls remains a critical aspect of Nari Sashaktikaran on a global scale.

Spiritual Equality: A Challenge to Patriarchy: Many Indian philosophical schools, including those associated with Hinduism, Buddhism, and Jainism, emphasized the potential for anyone, regardless of gender, to achieve spiritual liberation (moksha). This underlying principle of spiritual equality within a patriarchal society offered a powerful form of empowerment. In the modern context, this concept can inspire us to challenge the lingering effects of patriarchy that continue to restrict women's opportunities for self-discovery and participation in spiritual traditions.

Shakti: The Divine Feminine Force: Hinduism's concept of Shakti, the divine feminine energy embodied in various goddesses, acknowledges the significance and power of the feminine principle alongside the masculine. While interpretations vary, Shakti can be seen as a way of honoring women's inherent strength and potential. This resonates with modern feminist movements that celebrate women's power and advocate for their full participation in all spheres of life.

Building Bridges Between Past and Present: Despite the limitations of the past, the emphasis on education and spiritual equality in ancient Indian philosophies offers valuable inspiration for the ongoing journey towards Nari Sashaktikaran.

Continuing the Legacy: The Gandhian studies Centre set up in 2008 under the epoch, making social thinkers scheme of India is working for nurturing the old age traditions of India, the ancient philosophy of India, which values each life and strives to make them self-dependent (Atma Nirbhar) is kept alive by the centre through its women empowerment cell, which provides life skill training in fashion designing, cosmetology, and basic computers, to under privileged rural women the centre has provided skills to over 5000 women to live a dignified life. The Gandhian Studies Centre is through its women empowerment cell is trying to bring back the lost status of the under privileged rural women.

B. Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam and Gandhian Philosophy: A Shared Vision for Global Harmony

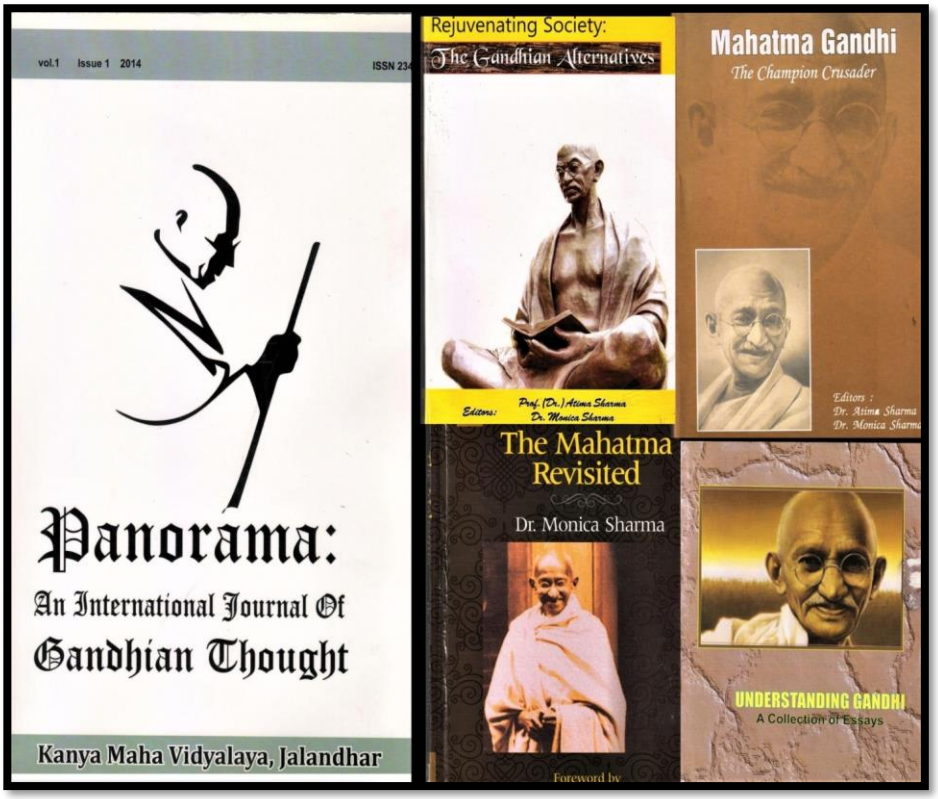

The ancient Indian concept of Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam ("the world is one family") finds profound resonance with the philosophy of Mahatma Gandhi. Both emphasize a universal outlook that transcends national or cultural boundaries.

Here is a deeper look at the interconnectedness of these ideas:

- Unity in Diversity: Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam acknowledges the inherent diversity of the world, similar to how a family comprises individuals with unique personalities. Gandhi's philosophy championed tolerance and respect for all cultures and religions, recognizing the strength that arises from embracing differences.
- Interdependence and Shared Responsibility: The concept of a global family in Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam implies a sense of interconnectedness and shared responsibility for the well-being of all members. This aligns with Gandhi's vision of global cooperation, where wealthier nations have a moral obligation to assist those in need. This resonates with modern ideas of international development and global justice.

- Non-Violent Conflict Resolution: Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam promotes a peaceful world, a vision Gandhi actively pursued through Satyagraha (non-violent resistance). Both philosophies reject violence as a means of resolving conflict and advocate for dialogue and mutual understanding.

The Contribution of Gandhian Studies Centre: Through seminars, conferences, workshops and publications the Gandhian Studies centre provides a platform to scholars across the world to delve into the various aspects of our ancient philosophy and Gandhian thought which help in making a peaceful unified place resonating with the ancient Indian concept of Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam.

C. Carrying forward the ancient tradition of Daan Through the Empathy Corner

Dāna is a Sanskrit and Pali word that connotes the virtue of generosity, charity or giving of alms, in Indian religions and philosophies. Dāna is any form of giving. In Buddhist culture, dāna (donation) is any relinquishing of ownership to a recipient without expecting anything in return. The Centre started the Empathy Corner outside the college gate in 2016. The main motive was to inculcate the sentiments of empathy towards the under privileged among the students through donation of clothes, shoes, utensils & toys etc.
